World-Class Rehab is Here

When my husband, Dennis Oberholtzer, sustained a brain injury in a fall in November 2005, I knew exactly where I wanted him to be after he left intensive care: Good Shepherd Rehabilitation Hospital.

Denny was fortunate – he qualified for their brain injury unit and they had an opening.

Good Shepherd is well known as one of the best rehabilitation systems in the country. Thanks to you and your gifts through mission support, Good Shepherd provided Denny with outstanding care, therapy, and the prodding he needed to move beyond the injury and back to life.

Denny's encounters with Good Shepherd didn't end with the brain injury. He spent time in the orthopedic unit following a hip fracture in December 2005, three months in Good Shepherd Specialty Hospital with a heel wound and MRSA, and months in physical therapy at Good Shepherd as an outpatient following an amputation.

In every instance, Good Shepherd's exceptional ability and caring support helped us both get through it all.

You were there through your mission support. Thank you. We both thank you.
